

SILENCE BROKEN BY GOV. TAYLOR

First Public Utterance Since His Exile From Kentucky.

Tells On What Terms He Will Come
Back, In Answer to Franklin's Call.

WOULD SUBMIT TO A TRIAL.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 24.—William S. Taylor, former governor of Kentucky, whose extradition has been sought by the authorities of that state since the assassination of Gov. William Goebel, seven years ago, gave out a signed statement, which he says is the first public statement he has made since leaving his native state.

He first dissects the promise of immunity, said to have been offered him recently should he testify in the Caleb Powers case, and then makes a proposition to the Kentucky authorities to return to his home state and stand trial on the charge against himself, if granted certain guarantees.

The statement says:
"For more than seven years I have borne in silence the slanders and persecutions of those who robbed me of what heaven knows was my own, and who, to conceal that crime against liberty, and for that reason indicted and drove me into exile. I trust an indulgent public will permit me now to break that silence."

"Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin, of Kentucky, knows that I have fully testified in the Powers case by depositions. The testimony is a part of the record of the case, and is accessible to him. He knows, too, that he had a right to cross-examine me at the time I gave it and did not do so. He knows that neither he nor any other officer or combination of officers in Kentucky has the legal right to grant such immunity."

"He knows that were I to return under such promise of immunity I would at once be arrested, denied bail, and, like Powers, be subjected to nothing less than a mock trial by a partisan court before a packed, partisan jury, and with a $100,000 corruption fund as a powerful incentive to conviction. The law is clear that Mr. Franklin or any other officer has no power to promise immunity."

"But inasmuch as Mr. Franklin abounds in propositions and promises and seems enamored of the idea that he can do things, I will say this:

"If he will in some way provide an absolute guarantee—not merely a promise—a guarantee that will inspire confidence among sensible, level-headed, honest men—a guarantee, the spirit of which may not be violated though the letter be observed, that I will be given a fair and impartial trial, I will gladly return to Kentucky and submit to trial."

"In other words, if Mr. Franklin will cause what remains of the one hundred thousand dollar corruption fund to be returned to the treasury of Kentucky, no part of it to be used in these prosecutions; will guarantee that all trial juries in my case shall be composed of six upright Democrats and a like number of upright Republicans; will guarantee that bail will be granted me within the limits of $100,000; will dismiss the indictments against all parties used as prosecuting witnesses except myself, and last, will in advance by mutual agreement, select an impartial judge to try my case, I will without any promise of immunity voluntarily return to Kentucky not only to testify in the Powers case but to submit myself to trial."

SCHOOLS TO OPEN ON SEPTEMBER 9

Superintendent Carnagey Returns for His Family.

No More Teachers Will Be Employed Until New Buildings Are Completed.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE PUPILS.

Having finished the examination of applicants for positions in the public schools, Prof. John A. Carnagey will leave this evening for Noblesville, Ind., where his family is. They start to Paducah next Friday, going by train to Louisville and thence by steamboat to this city. They will reside at 109 South Seventh street.

It is believed that all the teachers, who took the examinations will pass, but no more will be elected to positions until the new buildings are completed and ready for occupancy, to save the salaries until that time. It is believed male instructors have been secured to fill the places of Professors C. A. Norvell and L. W. Feozor, who have been elected to principalships.

About Promotions.

All children, who do not have regular promotion cards, and those who for any reason have to take an examination, should go to the superintendent's office in the Washington school building at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, September 4.

Children who are regular in their work and are sure that they are in the right school district, should report on September 9 at their own school, for classification.

The principals of the various schools will enroll all regularly promoted pupils on September 9.

All beginning pupils—those who have never been in school—will report at the school of the district in which they live, on September 9.

It is desirable that every child start to school promptly on the first day of school.

The boundaries of the school districts will remain as they were last year.

So Many Entries Promised for Horse Show and Races, That a Stable Will Have to be Rented

During the week of the annual horse show and fall races, September 24 to 29, inclusive, Paducah will be filled with the best bred stock ever assembled in this end of the state, and where to place all horses is a conundrum worrying promoters of the event a great deal. At present, judging from the way stock owners are writing, a livery stable or two will have to be rented to accommodate horses brought here. "If let- ters keep coming and if horse owners do what they claim they intend to do, we see no way to accommodate foreign stock except to rent the Par-

SOUTH FOURTH STREET SKATERS' PARADISE

Almost Encounter Between Boys and Suffering
Residents.

South Fourth street between Norton and Husbands streets, which has two blocks of concrete sidewalks is the skating rink for the whole south side, and pedestrians are barred by the overwhelming number of skaters. The residents don't object to the little ones, but the big boys take possession of things and efforts were made last night to interrupt the sport.

One housewife sprinkled a good coating of ashes on the sidewalk. It temporarily headed off the boys, but they soon returned with brooms and set to work to clear the obstruction. The lady informed them that when she desired her sidewalk swept she could attend to it. A good sized youth made an impudent reply, and a man next door called out, that if the youth should speak that way to his wife he would chastise the presumptuous youngster.

The boy got back and then there were all the premonitory symptoms of a riot on that block. But peace was restored shortly. The people are bent on breaking up the skating, as the numbers have made of an innocent pastime, what seems to them a positive nuisance.

FARMER SPLITS FOOT WHILE CUTTING RAILS

Mr. Eugene Metlock, a well known farmer, residing on the Pool road, three miles from Paducah, split his foot with an ax while cutting rails yesterday. Dr. Van J. Davis, who attended him, hopes to restore Mr. Metlock to complete use of the foot.

Rhodes, president of the Commercial club, and Capt. James Koger. The selection was a good one, and all members of the committee will be excellent representatives for Paducah.

As the improvement of the Ohio river comes under the head of the Ohio Valley Improvement association, the committee will have probably no active service.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE WILL MEET TOMORROW.

President E. W. Bagby has issued a call for a meeting of the Anti-Saloon league at the county court house for Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock to hear a report of a committee appointed to consult George O. Such a bill provides that the county unit controls cities located in the county.

The seven-month-old son of Engineer John Wicks, of Sixteenth street near Tennessee street, died this morning at 7:10 o'clock of pneumonia. The father is south of Fulton on business and could not be located this morning. The body will be held pending word from Engineer Wicks.

NOEL IS THE WINNER IN MISSISSIPPI RACE

Has Something More Than One Thousand Majority in the State.

Memphis, Aug. 24.—Practically complete returns from the counties of Mississippi indicate that the Hon. E. F. Noel, of Holmes county, bears off the honors in one of the most exciting political races that ever convulsed a state. With rare exceptions the vote was extremely close, as in Washington county, where a majority of six was returned for Mr. Brewer, and in Lowndes county, where the same gentleman carried the day by four votes.

The contests for the other offices were almost lost sight of in the whirlwind finish of the gubernatorial canvass, and not enough figures are at hand to indicate the winners. Should the figures be borne out by the official returns, Mr. Noel wins by 1,236 majority.

MR. EGAN NOT PRESENT BEFORE COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the joint street committee of the general council at the city hall last night, it was decided that a change will have to be made on First street between Kentucky avenue and Washington streets which the Illinois Central has obstructed with its tracks. On account of the absence of Supt. A. H. Egan, of the Illinois Central, no decision, as to what kind of change, was reached, but will be as soon as Mr. Egan can meet with the committee.

Big Revival Meeting.

Sharp, Aug. 24.—(Special.)—Another good meeting was held last night at the revival led by the Rev. T. J. Owen, of Paducah. The Rev. W. T. Bolling has returned to Paducah. Four additions were had to the church. Services will be held tomorrow morning and evening and one convert will be baptized.

Edward Stewart Buried.

The body of Edward Stewart, who was drowned off the government fleet of boats at Memphis several days ago, arrived this morning at 1:20 o'clock from Memphis, and was taken to the Mattil-Efinger undertaking establishment. This morning it was taken to Mt. Zion cemetery and buried. His father, Mr. Richard Stewart, and brother-in-law, Mr. S. J. Billington, accompanied the body here.

BANK CLEARINGS HOLDING UP WELL

Dull Season Does Not Strike
Paducah Very Hard.

Traveling Salesman Says Territory
Looks Promising for Opening of Business.

MOST ALL TOBACCO IS SOLD.

Bank clearings this week $669,650
Same week last year 668,066

Increase $1,584

Business is still on the quiet, but an increase is made over the clearings for the corresponding week last year. This is the season for dullness and one does not find the merchants grumbling for the prospects of a good autumn trade keeps them busy placing goods on the shelves. Too, the many cut price sales of summer goods are keeping the last summer remnants on the hop.

Tobacco sales are practically over. Thursday and Friday tobacco moved lively for a short time, but there was not much to move, as nearly all of the tobacco dealers are sold out. The prices are high, and notwithstanding this, the sales Friday were completed in less than an hour. The tobacco buyers have returned from a two weeks' vacation and the sales were merely put on to clean up.

Real estate is still idle, but agents are looking forward to a good opening by next month. Taking the situation as a whole, it is good. Traveling men for firms in this city report business that they can not complain of. Several traveling men were seen this week after having been in Paducah on business trips and they were well pleased, and say this month has been something above the average for them. Farmers in most sections report fine crops and have to look back many years for a parallel record. Corn and many of the cereals are keeping the farmer at home now. Vegetables are holding out well and prices are dropping on market.

PLOT TO ASSASSINATE PRESIDENT OF MEXICO

Los Angeles, Aug. 24.—A plot to assassinate President Diaz, of Mexico, was frustrated here by the arrest of three men. They are Ricardo Magon, Brado Rivera and Modesto Diaz, for whose apprehension the Mexican government offered a reward of $20,000. The Mexican consul here will make no statement regarding details of the plot.

CANNOT EXPLAIN HOW SO MANY DIED

Boston, Aug. 24.—When Martin Cooper regains his consciousness at the hospital, probably he will be able to explain the fire, which this morning killed his wife, three children, father-in-law, and fatally burned his baby, and may include himself as the seventh victim. Chas. Rogers, a boarder at Cooper's, was arrested on the streets in a dazed condition and held as a witness. Rogers says he and Cooper had a scuffle, during which the lamp was overturned. Apparently all the victims had plenty of time in which to escape.

SOME BOOKINGS AT THE KENTUCKY

"Mme. Butterfly". Blanche Bates and Al G. Field.

Some Big Productions Will Be Seen Here Before Christmas By Paducahans.

"TOYLAND" FOR SEPTEMBER 2

Paducah theater patrons will have opportunity this winter to witness productions rarely ever seen outside of the larger cities. The Kentucky is booked nearly solid to Christmas.

The preliminary season will begin September 2 with "Toyland," a big Chicago musical production, playing matinee and night here at popular prices. This will be followed by Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures, "The Great Santini," an all star vaudeville cast, "Kate Barton's Temptation" and a few others.

"We do not know when we will have our real opening," stated Mr. Goodman, "as Mr. Carney is still in New York to capture something big which can play Paducah early in the season. We want to have a big one for our real opening night. We have closed a verbal contract for Prof. William Deal's orchestra, and are completing all arrangements for throwing the playhouse open."

"Just a few," was the expression used by Mr. Goodman when he tendered a partial list of The Kentucky bookings for the first two months. In the list was seen the mammoth production "Mme. Butterfly," management of the Savage Opera company, which will doubtless be the biggest production in the musical line ever witnessed in Paducah. The company carries its own orchestra of 50 instruments. It will be the highest priced production. It has been playing in the metropolis for a season or two.

Some Bookings.

Musical—"Toyland," "The Time, the Place and the Girl," "Coming Thru the Rye," "Mme. Butterfly," Murray and Mack in "The Sunny Side of Broadway," "Royal Chef," "The Show Girl," "A Knight for a Day," "The Blue Moon," "Little Jonnie Jones" and "The Three of Us."

Field, "Before and After," "County Chairman," Paul Gilmore, Roselle Knott, Blanche Bates, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, William West's Minstrels and "The Virginian."

Woolfolk a Professional.

Bobby Woolfolk, the Louisville boy, who successfully put on his production, "The Traveling Man," in Paducah, has been engaged by Murray and Mack to write lyrics and songs for Murray and Mack's "The Sunny Side of Broadway," and has also been engaged as musical director of the show.

TWO MESSENGER BOYS GET INTO SOME TROUBLE.

Shooting wire staples out of flippers as a pastime, ignoring the fact that it may have cost some one eye sight, two Western Union messenger boys and a companion amused themselves at Second street and Broadway this morning. The staples were large, much larger than a double-pointed tack, and when shot out of the elastic rubber flipper went like a bullet. Two of the staples struck Mrs. Lizzie McCutcheon, who keeps a bench on market. One point penetrated her neck, and Patrolman Aaron Hurley promptly took the boys to the city hall, where they were reprimanded and dismissed.

How to Cure Constipation

Few people altogether escape a disorder of the bowels. You may catch cold, over-eat, over-drink, worry too much, not exercise enough or do a hundred and one other things that result in constipation or costiveness. When the trouble comes it is well to know what to do for it.

In the opinion of thousands there is no better cure for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which anyone can obtain for 50 cents or $1 at a drug store. We all have constipation occasionally, and the sensible thing to do is to have a bottle of this remedy always in the house. You take it at night on retiring, for example, and when you wake up in the morning at your usual hour it produces its results.

Your stomach instantly becomes lighter, your head clearer, your eyes brighter, you feel active and spry once again, your appetite has returned and you are ready to work with enthusiasm and vigor. All this may not have taken more than a dose or two, at a cost not to exceed two or three cents. Can you afford to feel bad when you can feel good for so little?

Dr. Wilson Brown, of Metropolis, Ill., has no hesitancy in saying that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the greatest of all laxatives and he frankly admits to his patients that if they used it when the stomach, liver or bowels got out of order they would have less need of him.

Without doubt the best cure for occasional or chronic constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, sour stomach, flatulence, indigestion, diarrhea, and similar digestive ills in old or young. It is a thousand times better than salts or purgative waters, acts gently but surely, is pleasant to the taste, does not gripe, and cures permanently.

Go to your druggist and get a 50 cent or $1 bottle and see if our claims are not justified.

FREE TEST

Those wishing to try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin before buying can have a free sample bottle sent to their home by addressing the company. This offer is to prove that the remedy will do as we claim, and is only open to those who have never taken it. Send for it if you have any symptoms of stomach, liver or bowel disease. Gentlest yet most effective laxative for children and adults. A guaranteed, permanent home cure. THE PUBLIC VERDICT: "No Laxative So Good and Sure as DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPsin." The product bears purity guarantee No. 17, Washington, D. C.

BASEBALL NEWS

Eddie Brabie Back. Eddie Brabie has returned to the city from Herrin, Ill., having left Herrin for good. He has been playing good ball with the team of that place. He will play with John Hollan's Independents and will probably catch tomorrow's game against the Metropolis Blues. Block, who has been doing excellent work behind the bat for the Independents, will go to the outfield; being a good outfielder and sure stickler.

Davis, of Murray, will arrive this afternoon to play with the locals tomorrow, bringing with him Williams, an outfielder. Al Winfrey is also here and will play ball with the Independents. This will make an unusually strong lineup.

FOG LIFTS AND FRENCH BATTERIES POUR DEADLY FIRE ON MOORS.

Second Attack on Casa Blanca Repulsed With Great Slaughter By Troops.

Paris, Aug. 24.—Vice Admiral Philibert, commanding the French naval forces off Casablanca, telegraphs that while the Moors were advancing on the French camp near Casablanca yesterday morning under cover of fog, the fog lifted and permitted the French batteries ashore and afloat to shell the Moors with deadly effect.

Gen. Drude in the afternoon moved forward his field guns to a ridge situated about four miles from camp, whence he shelled the Moors, who were then in full flight eastward.

The report that Mulai Hafiz, brother of the sultan, had been proclaimed sultan, still lacks official confirmation.

Gen. Drude, commander of the French expeditionary force in Morocco, will, when reinforcements flow on the way to Casablanca reach him, have at his disposal 5,000 men, which number is considered to be sufficient to insure protection of the town, unless unexpected events happen, for which emergency further reinforcements are ready to embark for Morocco.

RAILROAD NOTES

A good joke on C. F. Akers, of the air department of the Illinois Central shops, is going the rounds, and a great deal of amusement was caused this morning at the young man's expense. He won a prize at the Illinois Central picnic given at Kattawa on the 11th, and sent down to secure it. The prize was a ham donated by Marks, the grocer at Ninth and Jackson streets. It was supposed to be on display in the window of a downtown clothing store, but in reality it was only a "dummy" on display. Sending a boy down to procure the ham, he informed his wife that he would expect nice juicy ham for supper. On returning from work he was surprised to see a "dummy" ham on the table, split open and the sawdust filling strewn over a large platter. His wife had carried the joke a point further.

Mr. James Qualls, stenographer in Trainmaster A. F. Page's office at the Illinois Central has returned from the Jamestown exposition.

Mr. C. W. Woodridge, the Illinois Central pattern maker, is on his vacation and has come to Springfield, Mo., to visit his son, Mr. Charles Woodridge.

Will Johnson, 24 years old, a colored section laborer, narrowly escaped being fatally crushed yesterday while unloading steel rails from a car in the Paducah yards. He was under the rail when it dropped. He jumped aside, but not soon enough, his left knee being caught.

James Rice, an Illinois Central machinist helper, while loosening a nut yesterday afternoon injured himself in a peculiar way. His large wrench slipped and the nut being on a level with his face, caused the wrench to strike his nose, breaking it. The injury was dressed at the Illinois Central hospital.

Just 1 of a fall was registered on the stage this morning. This leaves the gauge at 8, and prospects are that the water will hover around this point for a week. The Tennessee river is rising slowly and rain has fallen in the upper Ohio river. This will tide over the present stage here. Weather clear this morning, and all packets were well loaded with freight. Plenty of passengers are leaving on all boats. The excursion season is nearing the last lap.

The John S. Hopkins was the Evansville packet and she arrived with a good trip.

Repairs to the Royal are expected to be completed tomorrow and the little packet will leave for Golconda tomorrow and will be in on time with Monday's trip.

Capt. Marion Ryan was in the city this morning. Capt. Ryan for many years was on the Louisville-Evansville packets, but recently has been on the Sam Brown, a big boat running in the Mississippi river between Memphis and Arkansas City. Captain Brown came to Mound City on the Dolphin, which went on the way for repairs, and Captain Ryan came to Paducah to see old friends.

The Dick Fowler arrived late last night and left a little late this morning for Cairo. Yesterday was a big day for the packet and coming up the boat had so many passengers that there were barely enough chairs.

The Harth will return tonight or tomorrow from Caseyville mines with a tow of coal for the West Kentucky Coal company.

The J. B. Richardson had an excursion out from this city last night. The Cowling brought up an excursion from Metropolis last night. The Cowling made her regular trips to Paducah today.

The I. N. Hook left today with a tow of empty barges for the Tennessee river after a tow of ties.

The J. B. Richardson will leave

MEXICAN VETERAN

HOLD REUNION AT THE JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION.

May Be Last Meeting of Army of Which Only 3,000 Are Now Living.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 24.—What is believed to be the last of the national reunions that will be held by veterans of the Mexican war took place today at the Jamestown exposition. Of the 78,000 men who comprised the army that was sent to Mexico sixty years ago about 3,000 are still living. The average age of the survivors is 86 years and on this account only a handful of the veterans were able to attend the annual reunion this year. The meeting was held in convention hall with Louis F. Beeler, of Baltimore, president of the National Association of Mexican War Veterans, presiding. The association had no business to transact, and the gathering was entirely in the nature of a reunion. The aged veterans were the recipients of numerous courtesies from the exposition management and exhibitors.

The Week In Society.

SPEECH.

Talk happiness. The world is sad enough.

Without your woes. No patch is wholly rough.

Look for the places that are smooth and clear.

And talk of them to ease the weary ear.

Of earth, so hurt by one's continual strain.

Of human discontent and grief and pain.

Talk faith. The world is better off without.

Your uttered ignorance and morbid doubt.

If you have faith in God, or man, or self.

Say so—if not, push back upon the shelf.

Of silence all your thoughts, till faith shall come.

No one will grieve, because your lips are dumb.

Talk health. The dreary, never-ending tale.

Of mortal maladies is worn and stale.

You cannot charm, or interest, or please.

By harping on that minor chord, disease.

Say you are well, or all is well with you.

And God shall hear your words and make them true.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Certainly this week could have been more active in the social world.

But Paducah society has not returned from the springs and health resorts or this cool weather might prove a stimulant.

So much attention is bestowed by the belated tourist on "that trip" that society has suffered.

HETTIE GREEN ON MODERN FANCIES

Says Young Women are Too Extravagant and Vain.

Richest Woman on Earth Says They Think Too Much About Their Clothes.

HAS NO USE FOR SOCIETY.

New York, Aug. 23.—"Young girls of today are too extravagant. They think too much about clothes and they don't have enough to do. If they had some useful work to occupy their thoughts they would not run to such extravagance."

So spoke Mrs. Hetty Green, the world's greatest woman financier, when asked her opinion on some topics of current interest. From her corner in the Chemical National bank she watched the tide of girls, young and old, in summer fluffery, turning toward Brooklyn bridge and Coney island.

"I speak from experience," she added. "Perhaps you don't know it, but I was quite a belle when I was young. But I outgrew all that sort of thing. These rainbow silks and metal fingers are not to my taste. I used to wear those things. I used to have more fixings and trimmings on me than there is on a Christmas tree. I have more sense now."

No Use for Society.

"No, I don't like society, and I seldom go out. Last season I went to one reception given in my honor. One reason why I'm so tired today that I can hardly talk to you is that my daughter, Sylvia, is going away to one of those swell places. I will be busy for a week yet getting her ready."

"Society hasn't enough to do to keep it out of mischief. Those so-called fashionable women spend all their time these days at bridge and smoking cigarettes and drinking pale tea and strong whisky. Every one of them ought to be working."

Her voice changed to an odd com- bination of indignation and humor. "The airs some of these people put on amuse me. Before they got their money some of them made pants for their children out of their husband's old trousers, and now they drive about in their own carriages and hold their noses up in the air as if the dust was not good enough for them. They do not know how to use their money yet. They are not accustomed to it. We had money in our family for four generations. Oh, they can't teach me anything about that."

She laughed—and her laughter is decidedly characteristic. It starts as a queer little cackle, as hard to de- scribe as to imitate, and it becomes a little cynical, a little humorous and altogether unique.

Fights For Her Rights.

Mrs. Green is ready to fight for her rights, and she told of a time when a Massachusetts insurance com- pany tried to beat her out of $2,000. She wouldn't be beaten. She hired lawyers to defend her rights. Her friends told her it would cost her a good deal more than the $2,000 be- fore she got through with it, but that made no difference.

"I do not care what it costs," she said to them. "I am not going to let any of those robbers beat me out of what belongs to me."

Nor did she.

"Well, when it came to trial," she said, "the court room was crowded. There were a lot of poor people who had been cheated out of money by that company and they were all back- ing me and they were all there in court. The lawyer for the company got up and said a lot of things and every one of them was a lie. Then I bent away over like this," and she went through the whole performance. "I got my head down below the top of the bench in front of me as if I were picking up something from the floor, and I called out so everyone in the court room could hear: 'Per- jured! You are a perjurer!'

She laughed afresh at the memory of it.

Causes Stir in Court.

"The court room was nearly in a panic. The judge rapped for order and the sheriff and bailiff came run- ning up and down the aisles, looking for the person who made the noise, and all the people got up and were looking here, there and everywhere. Then I looked around just like this and said to the persons who were sitting back of me: 'Who made that noise?'

"I was in the right, so of course I won. The poor people flocked around me to thank me, for my vic- tory was a victory for them."

"I stood on the stairs and made a little speech to them. I told them that if the company ever tried to rob a poor woman again just to let me know and I would come, no matter where I was, and fight for them."

"I don't fight without cause. I could tell some tales if I wanted to about these big scoundrels and how they rob and steal, but that is not my quarrel. I shall not interfere. I only fight when they try to rob me."

Why, it is a sin to allow anyone to rob you. That is why I fight."

Great Love for Son.

Hetty Green has one weak spot, and that is her love for her son (the big one of Texas), who is running a railroad presented to him by his adoring mother.

"He is doing nicely down there," she said exultantly. "I took him out of the club and put him down there."

But for a certain light in her eyes you might have thought Mr. Green was a trunk or a bag of golf sticks which had been shipped to Texas offhand.

"They tell me he is the most popu- lar man in Texas," she added.

"It is a pity he is a Republican," was suggested. "He would have a good chance at the governorship if he were a Democrat."

"I don't want him to be governor, and he won't be. What would hap- pen if I needed him in New York in a hurry? I could not ask the gov- ernor of Texas to come up here and attend to my business. Anyway, I told him to stay Republican. We have been Republicans for years back, and I don't want anything else in the family."

Medieval Woman's Leisure.

The women of the sixteenth cen- tury and earlier times had easier lives than those of our generation. To be sure there are a hundred labor-saying devices today which were un- known to them. But in at least two important respects they had the ad- vantage over their descendants.

They waged no conflict against dirt such as we carry on from morn- ing till night. The Elizabethan had no prejudice against garbage in his front yard, vermin in his bedroom, decaying rushes on the floor of his banquet hall, or soiled lace in his sleeves. The strength of arm and spirit which now goes to keeping clean was left to the medieval lady for other tasks.

Moreover, although her clothing was gorgeous—rich with embroidery and lace, and heavy with jewels—it was not subject to rapid changes of fashion. The cut of a sleeve or the hang of the skirt was settled for five years rather than for five months. Life was then free from the modern terror of "looking like a last year's rag bag."—Youth's Companion.

Modest Tommy.

The camel has nine stomachs—I heard it at the zoo.

Now, wouldn't I be happy if I had only two?

Oh, yes, I'd brim with gladness and call my life a dream.

With one for just roast turkey and one for just ice cream.

—Pack.

S.S.S. FORTY YEARS OF CURES

Long experience and thorough testing have proven S. S. S. to be the King of blood purifiers and the greatest of all tonics. For nearly half a century S. S. S. has been used in the treatment of blood and skin diseases of every character, and so satisfactory have been the results that it is now the best known and most widely used blood medicine on the market. S. S. S. attracted attention as soon as it was placed on the market by curing promptly those diseases for which it was recommended, and we have so jealously guarded its first good reputation, by keeping it up to its standard in manufacture, that it now has the unqualified and pleasing record of "Forty Years Of Cures." For Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Sores and Ulcers, Malaria, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other diseases due to an impure or poisoned condition of the blood, there is nothing that equals S. S. S. It counteracts and removes the germs and poisons, cleanses the system of all unhealthy matter, cures the trouble permanently, and restores strong, robust health. Where the blood is weak or anaemic and unable to nourish the system as it should, S. S. S. supplies it with the needed properties, and being a bracing, invigorating tonic it builds up the entire system. It goes to the very bottom of all blood disorders, and in this way reaches deep-seated and inherited cases on which the ordinary sarsaparillas and tonics have little or no effect. Not only is S. S. S. certain in its results, but it is an absolutely safe medicine. It enjoys the distinction of being the only blood medicine on the market that is guar- anteed purely vegetable. If you are in need of a blood remedy begin the use of S. S. S., the medicine that has proven its worth by its record of forty years of cures. Book on the blood and any medical advice you wish. No charge for either.

If the east is to have the vice-president the next time, why not Senator Winthrop M. Crane, of Massachusetts?

Going to be something doing here Labor Day.

The drafting of Hon. Charles K. Wheeler and other eminent Democrats, who have for some time remained aloof from political activity, indicates the extremity to which the party in Kentucky has been driven, and the recognition at Frankfort of the necessity of fighting for preservation.

WHOSE OX IS GORED.

To one standing off at a sufficient distance to enjoy the right perspective, it is amusing to see the administration press gloating over the downfall of the Louisville Democrats and abusing the Courier-Journal, because it is above petty politics and refuses to uphold the state machine in doing what they condemned in the Louisville machine.

It is a pleasure to see so great a paper rising above partisanship, and in view of what The Sun had to say of Paul Barth being personally an honest man, caught in the meshes of machine politics, and of his being vindictively held up by the state machine as a bait to catch reformers, the following extract from an editorial by Col. Watterson is interesting:

"He saw, or he thought he saw, a great legal tribunal yielding itself to what he believed ignoble, if not corrupt influence. He saw, or he thought he saw, a great political leader, whose fortune he had helped to make, betray him into the hands of his deadly enemies. He saw all this done in the name of Democracy by machine Democrats, some of whom owed their places to him; in the name of reform by jury-fixers and divekeepers, reeking with lust of money and power; in the name of God and morality by pharisees teeming with hatred and malice and all uncharitableness. He was conscious of no wrong; but, without a murmur, or an effort at litigation, or delay, with exceeding dignity, he stepped down and out.

"At this point one might surmise that power, having accomplished its purpose, would permit a man so gentle and unoffending to go his way in peace. Nothing was found in the archives of the department to impeach his integrity. He had actually reduced expenses. But malignity masquerading as religion, bigotry and intolerance resting their hopes upon the spirit and devices of the inquisition, supported by the very bravos of machine politics, must make their case and can spare no one.

"Under the circumstances, a manly successor, claiming to be a political associate and, during the broken term, an official colleague elected upon the same party ticket and retaining his place to the end, would, upon coming upon the queer horse-transaction, have sent for Mr. Barth and given him the opportunity to explain it. That little would seem to be due from one honest man to another. That little was due from one generous man to another. But the gospel of reform lettered out by the God and morality theory of government, spells proscription; the practice of reform emanating from the one-man power, spells tyranny and hatred and fraud. So, poor Paul Barth must be spit upon by the horns of the Holy Zebra set up by the Lord's Anointed in the New Jerusalem at Sixth and Jefferson as a 'crook' and 'thief' for the exaltation of Beckham and Bingham, of Aaron, Whallen and Knott; must be tortured and twisted and, if need be, done to death. And this is the poisoned banquet to which the people of Louisville are invited to sit down! This is the tainted company which the Democrats of Kentucky are asked to join and applaud! Was ever such insult put upon an upright, self-respecting and intelligent people?"

The whole country prays for the speedy recovery of Secretary of State Elihu Root. A man, not wealthy, judged by modern standards, capable of earning $50,000 a year practicing law, has given the best years of his matured life to the service of his country for $8,000 a year. He has strengthened us in our foreign relations, and his services in bringing about closer relations with our sister republics to the south is especially notable. He has been the right arm of two administrations. He is not a man gifted as a politician. He has simply brought the ripened experience of a great mind to bear on public questions, and much of the policy of the two administrations, with which he has been associated, has been Root's own policy. He has worked hard and faithfully. He has met and overcome some trying situations. Should the breakdown of his health prevent his further participation in public affairs, we know not who can fill his place.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

To those, who delight in looking through a microscope and watching a white corpuscle bite the hind legs off a micrococcus, or who can shoe a horse or sharpen scissors, the government offers an asylum and a steady job. Real scientists and expert workmen are wanted in employment, for which once the only qualification was ability to carry a precinct, or do the dirty work for the fellow who could carry the precinct. From the slough of disreputable politics, down hill toward which Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren and their confederates started the country, we have been steadily climbing up these ten years by the aid of the civil service. It has been derided and contumely heaped on the administration, which has been doing most to foster it. We are looking for results too soon. There are thousands of government positions, and we have got to have a little politics in their filling. Not that the administrations have particularly required it, but our representatives—the people's representatives—the men we send to congress, and for whom we vote directly, have demanded a little patronage, and much of the slander of the civil service has come from such sources. Every week there are examinations, some of them for places that pay excellent salaries. The civil service is gradually getting into the government employ cleaner, better men, and men toward whom heads of departments do not have to be so lenient in deference to the powers that put them there. The positions are preserved from political interference, and by the same condition, their incumbents are subject to discipline and may be made to earn their salaries.

We little appreciate the growing importance of the civil service. We have come to accept it as an actuality, and probably no future administration will dare to interfere with it.

DUN'S REVIEW.

New York, Aug. 24.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade tomorrow will say:

Bank clearings maintain a steady volume, denoting normal settlements through the banks, total exchanges this week at all the leading cities in the United States, outside of New York, being $801,337,478, an increase of 7.3 per cent over last year, and 22.1 per cent over the corresponding week of 1905. There is a large loss at New York city, due entirely to the fact that unusual speculative activity prevailed in the Wall street markets a year ago, and the trifling loss at Boston and Philadelphia is also a reflection of this. Otherwise, there is generally a considerable increase notably still in the west. The volume of business in August is usually the low water mark for the year, as will be seen in the figures of this year and 1905—speculative activity a year ago reversed this condition—and compared with 1905, the August settlement is quite as satisfactory as the preceding months.

Louisville Tobacco.

The Louisville Tobacco Warehouse company issued the following report of the leaf tobacco market yesterday afternoon:

The sales on our market for one week, including today, amounted to 2,421 hogheads, divided as follows: Burley, 847; dark, 1,574.

Burley—The market this week has shown improved activity over last week, and while there has been no quotable advance in prices, yet rather stronger feeling is apparent.

Dark—The market this week has not recovered from the slight decline in values, for the common and medium grades of unfired lugs which were reported last week, and prices for fired lugs in the past few days have been somewhat easier. There is no change to report in the condition of the market for leaf, either of the fired or unfired types. The stock of dark tobacco, both leaf and lugs, is unusually small for the time of year, and holders have no disposition to meet any decline in values, but to the contrary feel that the relations of supply and demand promise a still further improvement in prices.

Mutual Astonishment.

Here is a French joke that is rather English in character: The Marquis de Favieres, notorious for his impetuosity, called on a man of means named Barward and said:

"Monsieur, I am going to astonish you. I am the Marquis de Favieres. I do not know you, and I come to borrow 500 louis."

"Monsieur," Barnard replied, "I am going to astonish you much more. I know you and I am going to lend them.—Cleveland Leader.

POLICEMAN'S BRAVE DEED.

Rescues Unconscious Man From Death Under Passing Train.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Charles W. Ely, of Lenox, Ill., was rescued from death under the wheels of a swift passenger train after he had been sand-bagged, robbed and then thrown from the Van Buren street viaduct to the railroad tracks below.

When Policeman Sullivan passed over the Van Buren street viaduct he glanced toward the union depot, and as his eye swept the network of tracks he saw the body lying across a track used by one of the big limited trains, about due to leave the depot.

Horried, the policeman started down the viaduct to reach the tracks below. At the same instant he heard the whistle of the train as it started from the depot. Throwing aside his coat the officer ran down the incline and began the race against death. He scaled a high stone wall and jumped to the tracks. The next instant he was confronted by a long line of freight cars. Risking his life, the law enforcer crawled under the cars. He tore his trousers and bruised his leg. Blood began to drip from the wound, but he dashed along the tracks toward the unconscious man.

The train thundered down the rails and just as Sullivan dragged Ely's body from the rails it passed under the viaduct. Ely was carried to the county hospital, where it was found he had suffered a broken rib and internal injuries. It is thought he will recover.

SOUND LOGIC.

August and September are two months when one has to be very careful about every condition that makes for good, or bad health. The system is usually beginning to feel the strain of the hot summer months and the different organs need but very little to throw them into complete disorder and result in probably a fatal illness.

Good health is assured however if you heed nature's gentle warnings, and are in any measure discreet.

The usual summer disorders—malaria, general worn-out, and run-down, conditions, biliousness, stomach and bowel disorders of all kinds, chronic or acute headaches yield readily, and very quickly, to the Osteopathic treatment, and have no attending ill effects. Usually you are as ill from the customary medical prescriptions as from the illness, but in Osteopathy you experience none of this. Let me tell you at any time of the great success I am having with the treatment in Paducah. I shall refer you to people you know well for the evidence, and who will tell you just what it has done for them.

Mississippi Primary in Doubt.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 24.—The result of yesterday's primary election for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination is decidedly in doubt. The managers for Noel and Brewer both claim the election. CHICAGO POLICE RAID

TURNS UP MANY CROOKS.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—The Chicago police rounded out a day of warfare against criminals last midnight by killing a holdup man just after he had robbed a citizen and by capturing the robber's companion. Early in the day the police had gone actively to work to rid the west side of crooks. As a result more than 20 thieves and pickpockets, some of them criminals of international reputation, were shown to the detectives in the central bureau at the nightly line-up. It was the result of the first day's work of four squads of picked men sent out to rid Chicago of its recent influx of criminals. This raid on criminals is to be kept up, says Chief Shippey, and is to be extended to other sections of the city.

Short of Men in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—At the striking telegraphers' headquarters in the Laclede building it was stated that if the strike were settled at this time the telegraph companies would still be short at least 100 operators. That number of the union members, it was said, had left St. Louis and had found employment elsewhere and would not come back to St. Louis even at an advanced scale of wages because of the high cost of living here.

Letters were received from many of these operators, some of them enclosing money for the support of the strikers.

A Short Story for Sunday Reading

The Tale of a Feather Duster.

By F. P. SUMMERWELL.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

His first election night in New York found him drifting and lonely, in the midst of the howling mob that surged around Herald square.

The horns, the tickling dusters, the showers of confetti, the merry intermingling of class and mass, were all too new to be quite pleasing experiences. He felt interested enough, however, to move with the throng and to take good naturedly the many familiarities of the people near him.

At thirty-seventh street and Broadway he saw a slim young girl trying to escape the attentions of two overzealous duster holders. He pushed his way to her side and the boys fled, leaving him alone with the lady, no longer in distress.

She was young and of an alluring, limpid prettiness that made him feel big and awkward and anxious about the set of his coat. So absorbed was he in her general charm that he suddenly thrusting of a duster under his nose was a distinct shock. He had just sense enough to snatch it and ask, "Who are you?" when she ran away. "Who are you?" she called, "I'll tell you when you give me back my duster." Then she was gone.

He moved with the capering merry-makers up to Longacre square, where he learned of the defeat of his candidate for governor, then went home. The duster he carried with him and, handling it tenderly, hoped it might prove a means to dispel the crushing loneliness which he had felt ever since he had left his native town. He often wondered what the letters M. M. on the handle stood for.

His days went about as usual. He paid his lost election bet to the other young lawyer at the office. The winner's not treating seemed strange. At home they always did—but in New York everything was so different. He began to get on at the office, and once Judge Metcalf, his chief, mentioned taking him home to dine, but the matter never went any further.

The night of the presidential election found him once more mingling in the swarming pandemonium that raged around Herald square. He had the duster inside his coat and was no longer either lonely or listless, for he was hunting for M. M. to give her back the duster.

He wandered up and down, reading the conflicting bulletins, but always looking for a slender fairy of a girl who had sat like a queen in his heart for two years. The great searchlight at the Times building swung due north to indicate a Republican landslide, while the Journal's bulletin announced an overwhelming victory for the Democrats. Farther downtown the Herald proclaimed a small but safe majority for the Republicans, while according to a white sheet at Thirty-first street the same thing had befallen the other party.

He wrenched a yard long horn from an impertinent Italian boy, was tickled by a lady in an ermine coat and received a shower of confetti from a German housewife—all in the space of about ten minutes. He no longer looked askance at the mixed merry-makers. It was New York, and it all "went."

In front of the New Grand his attention was attracted by a gorgeous motor car. On the front seat sat his lady of the feather duster. There could be no doubt. It was she.

He felt cold and scared, but he pulled himself together and, stepping to her side, gave her the duster, handle first, and said, "Now, will you tell me who you are?"

She opened her eyes very wide, recognized him and the duster and started to speak when a smashing blow from the man beside her sent him spinning to fall with his head against an iron grating. His next sensation was of flying through space. Then a thousand bells rang, lights danced, voices buzzed, and he opened his eyes on a strange room. It was handsomer than his own, and beside him sat a nurse looking out of the window.

There was a calendar on the table, giving the date as Nov. 16. It must be a mistake, he thought—this was Nov. 7, election night, and yet there was the calendar. He put out his hand to draw it to him when the nurse turned, and he recognized the girl in the automobile. His head ached and his hands shook, but he was good grit, and when he met her bright gaze he said, "You never did tell me who you are." She laughed squarely at him, saying:

"My brother seemed to think his answer quite sufficient. He knocked you over before I had a chance to say anything. You ought to know who I am anyway. My picture has been on father's desk ever since the day after I met you in Thirty-seventh street, and the boys told me who you were. It occurred to me then that he ought to have one, but you never saw it. I am Marjory Metcalf, your chief's only daughter."

"Tom didn't know you when you brought me my duster, and before I could speak he knocked you down. We brought you home and have had a terrible time saving your life. The nurse is asleep, and I stole into her uniform. I guess I'll have to go now or she might not like it."

He caught her dimpled hand and persuaded her that the nurse really needed rest, which she must perform take so long as she was without any uniform.

"They had a lovely afternoon, giggling over the imprisoned nurse, eating bonbons, forgetting his medicine and being as happy as one can be in the springtime of life."

At 5 Mrs. Metcalf came in and told them that the nurse had departed in high dudgeon. They did not get any one in her place, Marjory and Tom and Mrs. Metcalf taking care of him themselves.

The night before he was to leave Marjory came up with the maid who brought his dinner. She was so perfectly lovely in a clinging white dress, open at the neck, that he had no eyes for anything except her dainty beauty. She finally decided that if he would not eat she would feed him, and they made a great frolic of the meal.

After she had made him take the last morsel, she decided to make him presentable. So she washed his face, then she combed his hair, and then he—she was so sweet. Of course she cried—they always do—and he had to kiss her again to comfort her. Then she grew a little saucy and tipped up her cleft chin and looked so irresistible he simply had to—just once more.

Mrs. Metcalf came in and found her daughter kneeling by Phil Pemberton's chair with her head on his shoulder. Her mother was so overcome that she forgot her grammar and exclaimed, "Why, Marjory, you've been being kissed."

"Mother," said Marjory, "how can you speak of such things before a strange man?"

"He is acting like a stranger, isn't he?" sniffed the lady of the house. "Are you engaged?"

"You'll have to ask him," said Marjory. "I don't really know."

"Why, yes, Mrs. Metcalf," answered Phil. "We are—I am sorry Marjory never told you."

"Why, Phil," exclaimed his sweet-heart, "you know we have never mentioned it."

"Mother," she cried, "don't you think father must be lonely downstairs alone? I should think you'd hate to leave him."

Mrs. Metcalf went and told her husband, who said he was delighted—that he would rather have her marry a poor man who promised well than a rich one who did not. Phil stayed a week longer, then begged Marjory to marry and go with him. He was six feet three, but he persuaded this little maid that he could not live without her—that loneliness would be his undoing. So they were married, not downstairs, as they ought to have been, but up in the cozy room where he had first seen her in the nurse's clothes.

Mr. Metcalf gave her away and Tom was best man, while Mrs. Metcalf stood very near and sniffed through misty eyes. The little bride wore the white dress with the open neck and looked like a morning glory. In her hair she wore no orange flowers, not even a "sunburst," the gift of the groom—but she did wear a moth eaten, much used feather duster.

MEN QUARREL AT KANSAS CITY

Members of James Boys Band and Follower of Quantrel Shoot.

Kansas City, Aug. 24.—David Edwards, aged 73, who was a member of Quantrel's band of guerrillas, and Jim Cummings, aged 60, who was a follower of the James and Younger boys in the days of their maraudings, quarrelled today at the annual Quantrel reunion near here and Edwards shot at Cummings. The bullet struck the shoe of W. H. Perkins, a bystander, glanced from it and wounded the foot of Dr. O. C. Shelley, of Independence, Kansas. Nightingales in Scotland.

The nightingales favors some districts and shuns others. Scotland it does not visit, but a century ago a patriotic Scotsman tried to establish the nightingale in that country. He commissioned a London dealer to purchase nightingales' eggs, 1 shilling each being given for them. These were well packed in wool and sent to Scotland by mail coach.

A number of men had previously been engaged to take special care of all robin redbreasts' nests in places where the eggs could be hatched in safety. The robin's eggs were removed and replaced by those of the nightingale, which were hatched and reared by their foster mothers. When full fledged the young nightingales seemed perfectly at home near the places where they first saw the light, and in September, the usual period of migration, they departed.

But the nightingales never returned to Scotland. It has been suggested that it was not the climate they objected to so much as the difficulty of acquiring the accent.—Glasgow News.

PREACHER SHOT FOR BOOTLEGGER

Was Killed by Deputy United States Marshal.

Two Poses of Revenue Officers Mistake Each Other for Moonshiners.

TWO ARE SERIOUSLY WOUNDED.

Tulsa, I. T., Aug. 24.—Mistaken in the dark for a "bootlegger," Sylvester Morris, aged 74, a wealthy retired Methodist minister, was shot and killed at the corner of North Second and Cincinnati avenue late last night by Deputy United States Marshal C. R. Wilson.

The old man was driving a two-horse wagon and was on his way home from his farm north of the city. Officer Wilson, in company with another deputy, had arrested three bootleggers in that neighborhood an hour before and were on the lookout for other violators of the law, when the old man came driving by.

He was halted by the officers who ordered him to give up in the name of the government. Instead of obeying, Morris whipped up his horses into a run. The officers say they then fired three shots into the air to scare the old man, but seeing he was not going to stop, Wilson shot twice to kill, both shots taking effect.

One ball passed through the heart causing instant death. The team dashed for home and neighbors, who had heard the shooting, came out to investigate the cause and found the dead body in the wagon.

When Officer Wilson learned of his mistake he surrendered to the police and was given over to the custody of Deputy Marshal Sam Cones.

Revenue Officers Have Battle.
Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—Commissioner of Internal Revenue Capers today received a telegram from Internal Revenue Collector Huber at Greensboro, N. C., saying: "Deputy Collector Hendryx, with posse from Raleigh, N. C., and Deputy Collector Henry, with posse from Durham met at a moonshine still last night. Each took the other for moonshiners and fired on each other. Deputy Marshal Gordon was mortally wounded and Deputy Collector Henry and the possemen were seriously wounded."

Commissioner Capers telegraphed instructions that no expense be spared in caring for the wounded.

GENERAL MUTINY IN RUSSIA.

Hurried Inspection of Navy and Fortresses Ordered.

Odessa, Aug. 24.—An urgent inspection of the entire Russian navy and the fortresses of Russia, it is stated on reliable authority, has just been entrusted to a commission of naval and military experts by Gen. Koladovsky who was hurriedly recalled from his vacation. Though the government is concealing the urgency the opinion is expressed that the revolutionists have been successful in carrying on their propaganda among the sailors and soldiers that the authorities fear a general mutiny in the navy and army.

Blue Dress Suit is Edict of Fashion; Some Other Kinds of Glad Raiment

New York, Aug. 24.—The latest wrinkle in glad raiment is to be blue evening clothes. The man who in the coming fall and winter expects to approach anywhere near the "real thing" will have to array himself nightly in a dark blue clasp-hammer.

At the annual garment and style exhibit which opened yesterday two-thirds of the evening suits on exhibition are made of blue worsted. The material is dark and in certain lights cannot be distinguished from black.

Other interesting things can be seen at the exhibition besides the blue evening clothes. The forms on which hang the clothes that New York ought to wear and probably won't look much like the wardrobe of a vaudeville slapstick artist or a Dutch comedian. The colors range anywhere from cream brown to Nile green.

Overcoats of the Calliope Type.

For instance, there is an overcoat which the exhibitors prophesy will be "popular" in the fall. Anyone who appeared on Broadway a year ago wearing that coat would have been followed for blocks by a mob anxious to see what he was advertising. The material is slightly darker than white flannel, and has a foot and a half plaid of three inch chromo brown stripes. Then there is another overcoat, supposed to be English tweed. The cloth contains a touch of every color in the rainbow.

If New York should adopt the styles set forth Broadway this winter will look like a carnival of boomers for a comic opera costume. There is one consolation, however, in the exhibit. Those who were worried last year over the dictum from the tailors' convention that men really must wear corsets need not worry longer. The sack coat of many colors will be cut full, and there will be absolutely no need for any artificial repression.

That Causes Itching Scalp, Dandruff, and, Finally, Falling Hair.

The itching scalp, the falling hair and the dandruff that annoys are the work of a parasite hidden in the scalp. That parasite must be killed to cure dandruff; and the only preparation that will do that is Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

"MARK TWAIN" A POOR TYPO.

No matter what else Mark Twain succeeded in achieving, he could not set type, says Anthony Kennedy, a 71-year-old St. Louis Post-Dispatch "newsboy." Kennedy cherishes as the proudest memory of his life the fact that the celebrated humorist and himself were compositors together on the old St. Louis Democrat for several months in the spring of 1853.

"We were sticking type then at 30 cents a thousand ems," said Kennedy, "and while the rest of us were drawing our $12 a week, it was all Sam Clemens could do to make $8 or $9. He always had so many errors marked in his proofs it took most of his time correcting them. He could not have set up an advertisement in acceptable form to save his life. Naturally, he did not stay in the printing business very long, because he would have starved at it. One day he washed his hands of river, where he got a job as roustabout. He must have found his element there, for two years later, when I met him for the last time on Chestnut street, he told me he had climbed up to pilot in that short time."

He had to own that Sam Clemens, as he knew him, was a very commonplace young man, not even known among his fellow printers as a youth of more than average intelligence.

"The most remarkable thing I remember about Clemens," said Kennedy, "is the fact that he was not 'one of the boys.' Then, more than now, it was the proud prerogative of printers to be able to drink more red whisky than men of any other trade. But Clemens, so far as I can remember, never took a drink."

"He was a silent chap, who attended to his own business and didn't mingle with the wild fellows who worked with him. He spoke in a delightful drawl, and sometimes unbuttoned sufficiently to tell a funny story, which he did well enough."

"He was a tall, gawky chap, just from the wilds of Hannibal, Mo. His clothes were several sizes too small for him and gave him the appearance of a scarecrow. It's been the puzzle of my life to explain how he happened to amount to anything. If he was reading or writing at the time I knew him none of us were acquainted."

ed with the fact."

In 1888 Kennedy was a compositor on the New York World, and was nominated by his local as a delegate to the annual convention of the International Typographical Union. He wrote of his success to Mark Twain, then known from ocean to ocean, and requested an endorsement, but worded his communication so unskillfully that the humorist supposed Kennedy had taken a position in opposition to his union. The reply has Mark Twain written all over it.

"Friend Tony," it begins, "I applaud the serenity of your effort to get me in trouble with No. 6. Now you get some other firebrand to tie to your tail when you go through the Philistines' corn; this one's busy. THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

By CHARLES KLEIN.

A Story of American Life Novelized From the Play by ARTHUR HORNBELOW.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.

He laughed cynically and drew up a chair near her desk. As a general thing, John Ryder never wasted words on women. He had but a poor opinion of their mentality and considered it beneath the dignity of any man to enter into serious argument with a woman. In fact, it was seldom he condescended to argue with any one. He gave orders and talked to people; he had no patience to be talked to. Yet he found himself listening with interest to this young woman who expressed herself so frankly. It was a decided novelty for him to hear the truth.

"What do I care what the world says when I'm dead?" he asked with a forced laugh.

"You do care," replied Shirley gravely. "You may school yourself to believe that you are indifferent to the good opinion of your fellow man, but right down in your heart you do care—every man does, whether he be multimillionaire or a sneak thief."

"You class the two together, I notice," he said bitterly.

"It is often a distinction without a difference," she replied promptly.

He remained silent for a moment or two, trying nervously with a paper knife. Then, arrogantly, and as if anxious to impress her with his importance, he said:

"Most men would be satisfied if they had accomplished what I have. Do you realize that my wealth is so vast that I scarcely know myself what I am worth? What my fortune will be in another fifty years staggers the imagination. Yet I started with nothing. I made it all myself. Surely I should get credit for that."

"How did you make it?" retorted Shirley.

"In America we don't ask how a man makes his money. We ask if he has got any."

"You are mistaken," replied Shirley earnestly. "America is waking up. The conscience of the nation is being aroused. We are coming to realize that the scandals of the last few years were only the fruit of public indifference to sharp business practice. The people will soon ask the dishonest rich man where he got it, and there will have to be an accounting. What account will you be able to give?"

He bit his lip and looked at her for a moment without replying. Then, with a faint suspicion of a sneer, he said:

"You are a socialist—perhaps an anarchist."

"Only the ignorant commit the blunder of confounding the two," she retorted. "Anarchy is a disease. Socialism is a science."

"Indeed!" he exclaimed mockingly. "I thought the terms were synonymous. The world regards them both as insane."

Herself an enthusiastic convert to the new political faith that was rising like a flood tide all over the world, the contemptuous tone in which this platonist spoke of the coming reorganization of society which was destined to destroy him and his kind spurred her on to renewed argument.

"I imagine," she said sarcastically, "that you would hardly approve any social reform which threatened to interfere with your own business methods. But, no matter how you disapprove of socialism on general principles, as a leader of the capitalist class you should understand what socialism is and not confuse one of the most important movements in modern world history with the crazy theories of irresponsible cranks. The anarchists are the natural enemies of the entire human family and would destroy it were their dangerous doctrines permitted to prevail. The socialists, on the contrary, are seeking to save mankind from the degradation, the crime and the folly into which such men as you have driven it."

She spoke impetuously, with the inspired exaltation of a prophet delivering a message to the people. Ryder listened, concealing his impatience with uneasy little coughs.

"Yes," she went on, "I am a socialist, and I am proud of it. The whole world is slowly drifting toward socialism as the only remedy for the actual intolerable conditions. It may not come in our time, but it will come as surely as the sun will rise and set tomorrow. Has not the flag of socialism waved recently from the White House? Has not a president of the United States declared that the state must eventually curb the great fortunes? What is that but socialism?"

"True," retorted Ryder grimly, "and that little speech intended for the benefit of the gallery will cost him the nomination at the next presidential election. We don't want in the White House a president who stirs up class hatred. Our rich men have a right to what is their own. That is guaranteed them by the constitution."

"Is it their own?" interrupted Shirley. Ryder ignored the insinuation and proceeded:

"What of our boasted free institutions if a man is to be restricted in what he may and may not do? If I am clever enough to accumulate millions, who can stop me?"

"The people will stop you," said Shirley calmly. "It is only a question of time. Their patience is about exhausted. Put your ear to the ground and listen to the distant rumbling of the tempest which, sooner or later, will be unleashed in this land, provoked by the iniquitous practices of organized capital. The people have had enough of the extortions of the trusts. One day they will rise in their wrath and seize by the throat this knavish plutocracy which, confident in the power of its wealth to procure legal immunity and reckless of its danger, persists in robbing the public daily. But retribution is at hand. The growing discontent of the proletariat, the ever-increasing strikes and labor disputes of all kinds, the clamor against the railroads and the trusts, the evidence of collusion between both—all this is the writing on the wall. The capitalist system is doomed; socialism will succeed it."

"What is socialism?" he demanded scornfully. "What will it give the public that it has not got already?" Shirley, who never neglected an opportunity to make a convert, no matter how hardened he might be, picked up a little pamphlet printed for propaganda purposes which she had that morning received by mail.

"Here," she said, "is one of the best and clearest definitions of socialism I have ever read:

"Socialism is common ownership of natural resources and public utilities and the common operation of all industries for the general good. Socialism is opposed to monopoly, that is, to private ownership of land and the instruments of labor, which is indirect ownership of men; to the wages system, by which labor is legally robbed of a large part of the product of labor; to competition with its enormous waste of effort and its opportunities for the spoliation of the weak by the strong. Socialism is industrial democracy. It is the government of the people, by the people and for the people, not in the present restricted sense, but as regards all the common interests of men. Socialism is opposed to oligarchy and monarchy, and therefore to the tyrannies of business cliques and money kings. Socialism is for freedom, not only from the fear of force, but from the fear of want. Socialism proposes real liberty, not merely the right to vote, but the liberty to live for something more than meat and drink."

"Socialism is righteousness in the relations of men. It is based on the fundamentals of religion, the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of men. It seeks through association and equality to realize fraternity. Socialism will destroy the motives which make for cheap manufacturers, poor workmanship and adulterations; it will secure the real utility of things. Use, not exchange, will be the object of labor. Things will be made to serve, not to sell. Socialism will banish war, for private ownership is back of strife between men. Socialism will purify politics, for private capitalism is the great source of political corruption. Socialism will make for education, invention and discovery; it will stimulate the moral development of men. Crime will have lost most of its motive, and pauperism will have no excuse. That," said Shirley as she concluded, "is socialism."

Ryder shrugged his shoulders and rose to go.

"Delightful," he said ironically, "but in my judgment wholly utopian and impracticable. It's nothing but a gigantic pipe dream. It won't come in this generation, nor in ten generations, if, indeed, it is ever taken seriously by a majority big enough to put its theories to the test. Socialism does not take into account two great factors that move the world—men's passions and human ambition. If you eliminate ambition you remove the strongest incentive to individual effort. From your own account a socialistic world would be a dreadfully tame place to live in—everybody oppressively good, without any of the feverish turmoil of life as we know it. Such a world would appeal to me all right. I love the fray, the daily battle of gain and loss, the excitement of making or losing millions. That is my life!"

"Yet what good is your money to you?" insisted Shirley. "You are able to spend only an infinitesimal part of it. You cannot even give it away, for nobody will have any of it."

"Money," he hissed rather than spoke. "I hate money. It means nothing to me. I have so much that I have lost all idea of its value. I go on accumulating it for only one purpose. It buys power. I love power—that is my passion, my ambition, to rule the world with my gold. Do you know," he went on, leaning over the desk in a dramatic attitude, "that if I chose I could start a panic in Wall street tomorrow that would shake to their foundations every financial institution in the country? Do you know that I practically control the congress of the United States and that no legislative measure becomes law unless it has my approval?"

"The public has long suspected as much," replied Shirley. "That is why you are looked upon as a menace to the stability and honesty of our political and commercial life."

An angry answer rose to his lips, when the door opened and Mrs. Ryder entered.

OX, COW, MAN ON TRAVELS

Wilhelm Kraf, Happy-Go-Lucky Sort,
Leads Contented Life on the Great Highway.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 24.—A fine economic William Kraf, formerly of Illinois, late of LaSalle, the River road, and intervening stations, post-offices, and dugouts. Leading an ox and a cow which were hitched to a wagon loaded with all his early belongings, Wilhelm passed through Buffalo. Besides helping to haul his wagon, which bears the legend: "Twentieth Century Ltd." the cow wields milk.

Asked about himself as he and his strange outfit were held up by a curious crowd at the corner of Washington and Seneca streets, Wilhelm told this, in substance:

Two years ago he bought the cow and the ox, trained them well together and took the long trail east from Illinois. He says he is not particular where he lives, and as he is one of the men "who want but little here below," his lack of anxiety regarding his abiding place is not inexcusable. A cheerful nomad is Wilhelm Kraf.

"Every morning I have fine coffee," he told a reporter, "and I sell milk from the cow for bread. Then I let my team eat 'long the road, and 'long as I is used right I stay 'round quite awhile long. When I travel I go two miles a hour."

The traveler knows this part of the country all right. Asked if he were bound for Cleveland he said he would go along the lake, and that he remembered a place called Silver Creek.

Will Go to League Meeting.

Mayor Yeiser has appointed four representatives to attend the League of American Municipalities, which meets at Jamestown next month. He has one more to appoint from the board of public works, but will not announce this appointment before members of the board return to the city and he can consult them. Appointments announced by the mayor are as follows: City Engineer L. A. Washington, City Auditor Alex Kirkland, A. S. Lindsay, president of the board of council, and Earl Palmer, president of the board of aldermen. The city bears all expenses of the trip.

"Line Busy;" Damage Suit.

Boone, Ia., Aug. 23.—Dr. H. P. Hansen, of Story county, has been made the defendant in a $2,000 damage suit, filed by Miss Alice McKee, chief operator of the night telephone service of Cambridge. Miss McKee alleges that Dr. Hansen called her some uncomplimentary names and even threatened to throw her from the telephone exchange because she did not get a message through as quickly as he wished.

TAFT AND HUGHES

TICKET THAT WOULD BE PLEAS-ING TO PRESIDENT.

New York Governor Has His Own
Ideas and Is Not Candidate for Second Honors.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—Information was brought here today by administration officials that the president has not abandoned his intention to induce Charles M. Hughes, governor of New York, to accept second place on the Republican ticket headed by Secretary Taft.

At the present time Governor Hughes wants the presidential nomination. The commendation he has received from the public in all sections of the country for the policies he has pursued in administering the affairs of New York and the support he is receiving from influential political and financial interests in his own state have inspired him with the hope that the national Republican convention will select him as leader of the party in the next campaign.

It was the firm belief of the administration last winter that Hughes would accept the vice presidential nomination if he could get it, but its view was rudely upset as a result of the unwillingness of the governor to permit what he considered presidential interference in patronage and legislative matters peculiarly within his jurisdiction. A coolness developed which threatened to shelve Hughes from consideration, but according to what is said now the president and friends of Secretary Taft have acted carefully in New York political matters in order to avoid stepping on the toes of the governor and expect that should he find his chance of the presidency disappearing he will gladly take second place.

Hughes' Chances Best.

It is evident to Hughes from the attitude of the administration and that of Speaker Cannon that his chance of the vice presidency is better than that of any one else available. Consequently he can afford to let take care of itself and seek support for the presidency. Whoever is nominated for the presidency if from the west, would feel disposed in all probability to sanction the selection of Hughes as his running mate.

Made the Excuse.

There is a story of a clergyman who had taken temporary duty for a friend, and who had the ill luck to injure his false teeth during the week. The plate was sent to the dentist for repairs, a faithful assurance being given that it should be duly returned by Sunday's post, but the dentist or the post proved faithless.

With the assistance of the clerk the clergyman managed to stumble through the prayers, but felt it would be useless to attempt to preach. He therefore instructed the clerk to "make some excuse for him and dismiss the congregation." But his feelings may be better imagined than described when, in the seclusion of the vestry, he overheard the clerk in impressive tones, thus deliver the "excuse."

"Parson's very sorry, but it is his misfortune to be obligated to wear a set of artificial teeth. They busted last Wednesday, and he ain't got them back from London today, as he was promised. I've helped him all I could through the service, but I can't do no more for him; 'taint any use him going up into the pulpit, for you wouldn't understand a word he said, so he thinks you all may as well go home."—TH-BITS.

Curious.

There were once two young women who married. And the question arising, How were they to spend their spare time? One of them took up the study of Greek history, while the other plunged into society.

The sequel is curious.

For their respective husbands were driven to exactly the same kind of drink.—Puck.

One Point Overlooked.

"Paloh, why don't you keep your desk looking neat?" "Why, Finnick, it's the neatest desk in the room."

"Yes—except when you are sitting in it."

Every doctrine must prove itself by doing.

Conscience is a good cure for undue conceit.

FLY TOO 'FLY' A NAME FOR HIM

George Washington Fly, Tiring of "Shoo Fly," Wants to Drop the Fly End of It.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 24.—Tiring of the sobriquet of "Shoo Fly," and believing that his family name was too undignified for a rising young business man, George Townsend Fly, a printer, of 2325 North Tenth street, petitioned the common pleas court to permit him to drop the Fly and adopt the name of George Townsend.

Fly had threatened to change his name for some time, but was opposed by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Fly, Miss Blanche Fly, and three Fly brothers, who are proud of the ancestral name and cherish it as being distinctive. George Townsend Fly was not at home when a reporter called, but Mrs. Fly and Miss Blanche Fly intimated that their brother's objection to the family name might arise from opposition on the part of the young woman to whom Fly is engaged from herself becoming a Fly.

Although a Fly, George Townsend Fly has been fly enough not to buzz to any extent about his name, and others of the Fly family were unable to give the exact reason why Fly should wish to fly from a name which is honored in Bucks county from which the Flys flew.

"I am greatly opposed to my son's effort to drop the name of Fly," said Mrs. Fly, who herself became a Fly upon her marriage to Wilson Fly many years ago. "It is good enough for me, and I am satisfied to be a Fly."

"I am proud of the name of Blanche Fly," interposed Fly's sister, "and when any one says 'Shoo Fly' to me I attribute such conduct to ignorance and lack of breeding. If George wants to change his name, I guess he has a right to do it, and

JUVENILE RACE WAR BREAKS OUT

Eighth and Tennessee Street Scene of Encounter.

Non-Combatants Get Worst of Long Range Fighting Around Medicine Show.

ONE IS KNOCKED SENSELESS.

Four were injured, one seriously and many women and children subjected to the gravest of danger at Eighth and Tennessee streets last evening between 9 and 10 o'clock by a fight between negroes and white boys. Rocks, iron nuts, and iron bars were weapons, and they were not used at short range, but hurled at a distance into the crowd of several hundred persons congregated about a medicine show. Patrolman Will Orr, who was off duty, was the only policeman present at the time, but was on the other side of the crowd. He gave chase to the negroes, who ran after making the attack, but was outstripped.

A medicine show for two weeks has been amusing people nightly at Eighth and Tennessee streets. Women comprise a large part of the crowd, and sit on the northwest side of the stage. Just back of the stage is a blacksmith shop, and from the dark recess of the shop and the stage came the attack. Cries of pain were soon followed by angry shouts of "mob 'em" and a party of men and boys started for the escaping negroes, armed with rocks.

J. S. Ferguson, of 517 South Eleventh street, a cripple who has to walk on crutches, had been to church, and passing the show, stopped a short time. He was standing on the edge of the crowd when he was knocked senseless by an iron nut two inches in diameter.

Don Trotter, a boy, was struck on the leg and had to be assisted to Segenfeiter's drug store, Ninth and Tennessee streets. Ferguson was also taken there and an ugly wound over his right eye dressed.

Roger Anderson was struck on the body and bruised by a rock and John Rinklin, another young man, who stood on the edge of the crowd and took no part in the affair, was struck on the left wrist. One or two others were struck, but their names were not learned.

None of the injured had taken any part in the fray and no one seemed to know exactly how it started. Trouble had been brewing for some time, negroes and white boys having engaged in several personal encounters during the week.

It is stated that the authorities will, as a matter of precaution, compel operators of the medicine show to station special policemen on the grounds to preserve order.

Marksmanship in the Navy.

An observer who looked over an average British and average American naval crew would probably lay odds on the Americans. Their general aspect is unquestionably more alert, more "alive" and more modern. On the other hand, most of our naval crews are very young men indeed, while the petty officers and leaders of the British complement are seasoned veterans of long service. A rivalry in gunnery between the American navy and the British navy in these times is a matter of entire good humor, conducted in the essential spirit of honest, amateur sport. For both services take it for granted that they have fought their last fight and that if they ever come together again it will be in the same cause, against the same enemy. Yet the American people believe they have a traditional right to expect that in marksmanship as in general efficiency, their fighting vessels shall be the foremost in the world. These British records deserve frank and keen examination by our naval officers.—Boston Transcript.

OFFICER SHELBY DIES OF ABSCESS

Side and Great Pain.

One of Most Trusted Patrolmen on Force and Popular in Large Circle in City.

PASSES AWAY THIS MORNING

Patrolman Walter Shelby, 26 years old, one of the most efficient and popular policemen on the force, died at 5:05 o'clock this morning at his residence, 407 Tennessee street, of paralysis, caused by an abscess on the brain. Death was sudden, and his wife is prostrated. He had been a resident of Paducah for four years, and during that time had made countless friends, who are shocked to learn of his sudden death.

Walter Shelby was born at Obion, Tenn., 26 years ago, and was engaged in the livery business at Obion for several years, but sold out and went to Jonesboro, Ark., and engaged in the saloon business. He returned to Obion after a short time, came to Paducah four years ago and went to work for Mr. C. E. Blackall, Ninth and Kentucky avenue, as bartender. For three years he worked with Blackall and then married an Obion girl three years ago in September.

After leaving Mr. Blackall's employ Mr. Shelby worked for Capt. Ed Pearson, Ben Allen and Charles Rodfus. He applied for a position on the police force and was elected the first of the year. During his service on the force he patrolled the most important beats and arrested some desperate characters. Fear was a quality unknown to the popular patrolman, and he enjoyed the perfect confidence of Chief Collins and his superior officers.

Thursday Patrolman Shelby arose with a peculiar numbness in his left arm. He told his partner, Patrolman James Clark, on reporting for duty at 6 o'clock, that he did not feel like working. Consulting a physician he was advised to exercise as much as possible. Steadily the numbness extended over his side until he had to go home in a cab. This was about 10 o'clock. His partner sent him home. At 5 o'clock the next morning he was reported in a critical condition, and doctors gave up hopes of recovery. So violent was the pain that he had to be held in bed. He lingered until death relieved his sufferings this morning.

Patrolman Shelby leaves a wife and his father, Mr. W. S. Shelby, a farmer of near Hickman, who was notified of his death this morning. He also leaves one married sister and two brothers, Messrs. Joe and Jim Shelby, of Tennessee.

Mr. Shelby's father and his sister, Mrs. Harrel, arrived at noon today. The funeral will be held here tomorrow, and the police department will be represented.

Mr. Shelby was a member of the Eagle lodge and of the Bartenders' Union.
